At any rate, the elements at work in the present disorders are the outcome of the disunity among the English, French and Italian Governments, which cannot see things in the same perspective. If there were any solidarity it would probably make its appearance in a pact comprising Russia, Germany, Bulgaria and Turkey, and perhaps one or two of the succession States of the former Austrian Empire.

Although the pivot of the present trouble is Poland, the periphery which makes this pivot possible extends to the fringes of Europe and takes in part of Asia.
